Love emotional video songs telugu

Take a journey down memory lane that will make you feel AF nostalgia Our collective obsession with Pokemon Go has unleashed its fair share of new love stories (and has interrupted some too), so it's only natural that the game has its own romantic ballad. Last week, an Australian band released their love song Pokemon Go. It's called The Pokemon GO Song (of course), and it tells the euphoria and heartbreak of falling in love through a gripping AR game. Pokemon Go and Chill may be a new way to meet like-minded partners, but - as this song warns - things can go wrong when your partner loves Pokemon Go more than you do. Stiffys, an art rock band based in Melbourne, Australia, released their pokemon go song last week. In an introduction to the video for the song, bassist Jason Leigh explained the band's motivation to write the song. As with the rest of humanity, the game had taken control of the band's life:WE WASTED SO MUCH RECORDING TIME PLAYING POKEMON GO A LOT TO THE FRUSTRATION OF OUR PRODUCER STEVEN SCHRAM, SO HE SAID YOU SAY MAKING A SONG ABOUT IT WAS THE ONLY WAY HE COULD GET US BACK TO WORK. The song tells a boy's love story with his Pokemon Go-loving girlfriend. The singer fondly remembers the first Pokemon they captured together (Bulbasaur and Squirtle). Clearly the didn't know about the hack that allows you to catch Pikachu before.) This love story, however, isn't all candy and stardust. The singer quickly learns that it's hard to cling to someone who wants to be the best, like no one has ever been! He found me, then threw me like I was just a Pokeball, sings. Ouch.In the chorus of the song, it is clear that, not only has this girl abandoned her BF for Pokemon Go, but she has also completely ignored personal safety:She is coming out in traffic when she is on her game. Jumping on the brakes while we're in the fast lane. He just wants to train. It's on another level that I can't explain. We've already heard a lot of stories of bad things that can happen to Pokemon Go players who don't pay attention (for example, a teenager was hit by a car and two guys fell off a cliff). The Stiffys brought their story to its logical conclusion:My girlfriend was in the middle of a midnight chase. A car came out of nowhere, hit the brakes. There's nothing she could do because it was raining. now I might have lost her, but I have her game. I like this. It's like Leader of the Pack for the modern era. Except, instead of mourning her dead girlfriend, does the singer seem mostly pumped to get all her Pokemon.La of the story? Pay attention to your surroundings, Pokeplayers! (E don't date people who lack your dedication to capturing them all. It only leads to resentment.) Pictures: YouTube (2) Romantic love songs are some of the most memorable pop songs ever written.
